specification pertaining to the dimension "B"; and this attorney disagreed.

This attorney indicated to the examiner that the drawings illustrate structure, and that that structure is the basis for the claims, and that structure is accurately described in the specification, notwithstanding the designation of dimensions therein.

The drawings were previously amended, along with corresponding amendments to the specification, to conform the specification to the drawings, including the dimension "B."

The examiner's position of new matter is therefore unsubstantiated, and is inconsistent with the original disclosure, and will be separately traversed in response to the final rejection.

The interview ended without agreement, with the examiner indicating that the search would be updated.
